The Colorado Health Foundation™

2026 Colorado Health Symposium

The Colorado Health Symposium brings together nonprofit leaders, grassroots organizers, community advocates, funders, policymakers, and movement partners who are working to strengthen health equity across Colorado.

More than a conference, the Symposium is a gathering for shared learning, practical skill-building, and meaningful connection—where ideas are tested, partnerships grow, and new pathways forward begin to take shape. This year's theme, Wisdom and Wonder: Weaving Generations Together for a Healthier Future, reflects both the challenges of this moment and the opportunities to draw on hard-earned experience and fresh imagination to move the work forward together.

This year's Symposium focuses on three essential skills and practices for strengthening health equity work in Colorado:

1. Strengthening nimble, durable, cross-movement coalitions – Timely approaches that help coalitions stay strong, coordinated, and adaptable across organizations and generations, especially during moments of political division, misinformation, funding challenges, and community crisis.
2. Creating narrative power to counter misinformation and build collective will – Practical narrative strategies that help organizations respond to misinformation, stay aligned in their messaging, and build shared understanding and collective will in a rapidly changing information environment.
3. Building Intergenerational partnership and collaboration – Concrete ways organizations can strengthen collaboration across generations and alongside communities by building trust, clarifying roles, and improving how people work together in changing conditions.
