

The Colorado Health Symposium

Health is Everyone's Business

Stuart M. Butler, PhD
The Brookings Institution
July 28, 2016

Medicine and Social Services – US an Outlier

Health and Social Care Spending as Percentage of GDP

Courtesy of the Commonwealth Fund

How Can We Better Coordinate Health and Social Services?

Q: Why is it difficult?

Q: How can we do better?

The Challenges for Hospitals as Partners in the Community

- Collecting and sharing data
- Organizational culture and skillsets
- Budget silos – the “wrong pocket problem”

Making Health Everybody's Business

- Need collaboration across sectors
- Think in terms of “hubs” – places where services can come together to advance health
 - Schools
 - Public Housing
 - Hospitals

Making This Happen With Hospitals

- Reimagine business models
- Assemble diversified skills – using intermediaries
- Get the financial incentives right (waking up Wash DC and the states)

Some Final Thoughts